Iraq Blast Kills Head Of Council

June 30 power transfer will not be delayed, officials say

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | A suicide bombing killed the head of the U.S.-appointed Iraqi Governing Council as his car waited at a checkpoint near coalition headquarters in Baghdad on Monday, a major setback to American efforts to stabilize Iraq just six weeks before the handover of sovereignty.

Izzadine Saleem, also known as Abdel-Zahraa Othman, was waiting in a Governing Council convoy at a U.S. checkpoint along a tree-lined street preparing to enter the Green Zone when the bomb was detonated. It apparently had been rigged with artillery shells and hidden inside a red Volkswagen.

Iraqi officials said nine people, including the bomber, were killed and 14 Iraqis and an Egyptian were wounded in Monday's attack. U.S. Brig. Gen. Mark Kimmitt put the death toll at seven. Two U.S. soldiers were slightly wounded.

Iraqi and coalition officials vowed that the power transfer would take place on June 30, as scheduled, despite the attack.

The U.S. military also said Monday that U.S. soldiers found a roadside bomb containing sarin nerve agent in Baghdad. The device, which partially detonated, was apparently a leftover from Saddam's arsenals. It was unclear whether more such weapons were in the hands of insurgents. ROBERT H. REID (AP)

CRIME | Smear Campaign A Fairfax County man is under arrest in upstate New York for a rather unusual crime — smearing his hotel room with Vaseline. Roger Chamberlain, 44, of McLean is accused with causing more than $1,000 in damage by spreading petroleum jelly on mattresses, furniture and other items in his room at a Motel 6 near Binghamton, N.Y., hotel officials say. Police arrested Chamberlain at another motel, where they say they found him covered in Vaseline from head to toe. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

RACES

Fit, for a King

A cadre of Elvses ditched their blue suede for running shoes on Sunday to participate in San Francisco's Bay to Breakers race, an annual event known more for its costumes — or lack thereof — than its athleticism. This year's installment drew an estimated 45,000 registered runners and about 60,000 onlookers and last-minute race-crashers, the San Francisco Chronicle reported. The race has garnered a racy following among nude runners, who numbered in the hundreds during last year's running. Naked folks participated this year, too — including one man who dubbed himself "Hanging Chad," the Chronicle reported. (EXPRESS)

Watch for Splinters

Friends of Hungarian firefighter Andras Samu knew that after his mountain bike was stolen he'd probably want a replacement. So they made him one — out of wood. The new bike isn't as speedy as his last ride, and the wooden seat is probably not particularly forgiving should he hit a bump in the road. Nonetheless, Samu appeared to enjoy the gift when he took it for a spin in the town of Hatvan, north of the capital, Budapest, over the weekend. (EXPRESS)

RECORDS

Several Giant Leaps

Some Taylor University students hope they've taken a leap into the record books. More than 920 students and staff at the central Indiana college say that over the weekend they broke the Guinness World Record for the greatest number of people playing leapfrog. Taylor spokesman Jim Garringer said the students beat the old record, which involved 77 leapers. Leapfrogging isn't as easy as it looks, according to student Megan Fisher. She says it takes skill not to have people crashing into each other. (AP)

ON THE JOB

Feeling Sleepy

Dozing off at the office has become a problem for many workers in European countries, according to a survey released Monday. More than 60 percent of those polled said they'd fought the urge to sleep at work, with 24 percent saying they'd actually nodded off at their desks, in a meeting or in the office restroom, Reuters reported. The survey by Jobline and Monster Worldwide, which polled 21,500 people in 14 countries, said more Irish respondents dozed than other nationalities — while the Dutch were more likely to stay awake. Agency to Add Screeners At Busiest U.S. Airports

In an effort to reduce long waits for travelers, the government is hiring more than 100 new security screeners for dozens of airports, including Dallas-Fort Worth, Miami, New York's JFK and Washington's Dulles. Other airports, deemed overstaffed, will lose screeners. U.S. air carriers expect 65 million passengers each summer month. That's 12 percent more passengers per month compared to last summer. (AP)

Gay Couples Marry Across Mass.

State becomes first in nation to legalize same-sex weddings

BOSTON | Elated and in some cases incredulous at making history, gays and lesbians by the dozens exchanged vows and were pronounced "partners for life" Monday as Massachusetts became the first state to let same-sex couples marry.

The nuptials ranged from quick city-hall ceremonies to ornate weddings in downtown Boston churches, complete with champagne and fancy cakes. Among the touches: matching orange bow ties, rainbow flags and confetti, the Boston Gay Men's Chorus singing "Marry Us," and a special rendition of "Here Come the Brides."

Fewer than a half-dozen countries allow same-sex couples to marry.

Only a few protesters spoke out in Massachusetts, but some conservative leaders expressed outrage and President Bush renewed his call for Congress to pass a constitutional amendment banning gay marriages nationwide.

For all the jubilation, the hundreds of couples who received licenses still confront uncertainty, perhaps lasting years.

Massachusetts lawmakers have taken initial steps toward letting voters decide in 2006 whether to ban same-sex marriages and instead define such partnerships as civil unions. It is not known how the marriages that occur between now and 2006 will be recognized if the ban occurs. DAVID CRARY (AP)

WEDDING MARCH

The first legal gay marriages in the United States provoked a range of reactions throughout the country on Monday:

→ "I'm marrying the person I love."

— John Sullivan of Alabama, who married his partner of six years, Chris McCary, in Provincetown, Mass.

→ "The sacred institution of marriage should not be redefined by a few activist judges."

— President Bush, in a statement calling on Congress to pass an amendment defining marriage as a union of a man and a woman.

→ "What's going on down there is legal, and as far as I'm concerned, give those people their happiness for the day."

— Ray McNulty, spokesman for the Massachusetts Family Institute, a leading organizer of opposition to gay marriage.

Janklow Released From S.D. Jail

SIoux FALLS, S.D. | Former congressman and governor Bill Janklow left jail Monday, 100 days after he began serving his sentence for an accident that killed a motorcyclist.

Janklow, carrying a large accordion file under one arm and a brown grocery bag in the other, walked out of the jail and left in a vehicle driven by a longtime friend.

A jury in Janklow's hometown of Flandreau convicted him in December of speeding, running a stop sign, reckless driving and second-degree manslaughter for an Aug. 16 accident that killed Randy Scott of Hardwick, Minn.

Scott, 55, died instantly. Janklow, 64, suffered a broken hand and bleeding on the brain.

Janklow, a Republican who served four terms as governor, was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives in 2002. He resigned Jan. 20 and started serving his jail time Feb. 7.

He has appealed his manslaughter and reckless driving convictions to the state Supreme Court. (AP)

N.Y.'s Reaction to 9/11 Probed

Hearings to examine rescue efforts in New York on day of attacks

NEW YORK | In the years since the Sept. 11 attacks, a rising chorus of New Yorkers has demanded a tough-minded investigation of the city's emergency response that would assign responsibility for systemic flaws.

They may be disappointed when the national commission investigating the attacks meets Tuesday in New York City. The commission is expected to describe gaps in communication between the police and fire departments. But members of the commission and others familiar with its work said it would also seek to dispel what they called misconceptions about the city's rescue efforts.

That portrayal may not be well received by relatives of the dead, many of whom believe that long-standing problems in the city's emergency response systems led to deaths in the towers.

Former Mayor Rudolph Giuliani and his heads of fire, police and emergency management are expected to portray the city's efforts that day as a flexible, cooperative response. MICHAEL WEISSENSTEIN (AP)

- Bernard Kerik: Former New York City police commissioner
- Thomas Von Essen: Former New York City fire commissioner
- Tom Ridge: Secretary of Homeland Security
- Dennis Smith: Former fire-fighter and author

Court: Disabled Can Sue for Access

WASHINGTON | Disabled people can sue if states ignore a landmark civil rights law that protects their rights, a divided Supreme Court ruled Monday in the case of a paraplegic man who crawled up the steps of a small-town courthouse because there was no elevator for his wheelchair.

The 5-4 ruling marks a limited but important endorsement of the 1990 Americans With Disabilities Act, a law meant to ensure equal treatment for the disabled in many areas of life.

Access to courts and the services they provide is a basic right, and the ADA properly gives private citizens such as George Lane the power to sue for damages if a state fails to live up to that promise, the liberal-led majority ruled.

The ruling means Lane can return to a lower court in Tennessee, where he sought up to $100,000 in damages for what he said was humiliating treatment that violated the ADA. Lane crawled up two

Implants May Help Deaf Kids Learn Speech Skills

CHICAGO | The earlier deaf children get cochlear implants, the more likely they are to speak and comprehend language normally later in life, new research suggests. In fact, some doctors say doing the surgery in infancy may produce the best results.

In one study, children ages 12 months to 3 years showed rapid improvement in understanding speech during the first year after receiving one of the electronic devices, with the best results in the youngest children.

In another study, 43 percent of children who got implants at age 2 had normal oral language abilities at ages 8 to 9, compared with just 16 percent of youngsters who got implants at age 4, University of Texas Southwestern Medical School researcher Ann Geers found.

Both studies appear in May's Archives of Otolaryngology-Head & Neck Surgery, released Monday.

This month's issue focuses entirely on cochlear implants in children.

trodes to transmit sounds to the auditory nerve and brain, bypassing nonfunctioning parts of the ear. The electronic devices are approved for use in children as young as 12 months, but some doctors have begun implanting them in even younger children.

Rangers Reach Stranded Wash. Climbers

SEATTLE | Two national park rangers Monday reached a seriously injured climber and his companion who had been stranded on Mount Rainier, but a rescue attempt was put off until Tuesday because of the steep terrain and snow.

The rangers reached the men at midday and had been speaking by phone with a doctor on how to treat the injured climber, Mount Rainier National Park spokeswoman Lee Taylor said.

The climbers have been stranded at 12,300 feet since Saturday on a 45-degree slope with steep and rocky terrain above and below them.

Because of the difficult, technical rescue, the rangers decided not to start until Tuesday morning. They hoped to reach the Carbon Glacier at 9,000 feet by Tuesday and get the men off the mountain Wednesday.

A helicopter was able to drop supplies to the climbers Sunday night. (AP)

U.S. Troops Find Nerve Gas in Iraq

Sarin-rigged bomb could be first WMD discovery of Iraq war

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | U.S. soldiers found a roadside bomb containing sarin nerve agent in Baghdad, the military said Monday. The device, which partially detonated, was apparently a leftover from Saddam Hussein's arsenals. It was unclear whether more such weapons were in the hands of insurgents.

Soldiers who removed the bomb experienced symptoms consistent with low-level nerve agent exposure, U.S. officials said. No one was wounded in the partial blast Saturday, and the dispersal of sarin from the bomb was very limited, the military said.

If confirmed in subsequent testing, the discovery would be the first evidence of a banned weapon in Iraq since the war began.

Earlier this month, some trace residue of mustard agent, an older type of chemical weapon, was detected in an artillery shell found in a Baghdad street, a U.S. official said Monday, speaking on condition of anonymity. The shell was believed to be from one of Saddam's old stockpiles.

In Washington, Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld cautioned that the sarin results were from a field test, which can be imperfect, and more analysis needed to be done.

State Department spokesman Adam Ereli said "the jury is still out" on whether chemical or other weapons of mass destruction remained in Iraq. CHRISTOPHER TORCHIA (AP)

THE NERVE AGENT

Some known facts about sarin:

WHAT IT IS: Developed in Germany in 1938 as a pesticide, it is a colorless, tasteless liquid that can evaporate into an odorless vapor.

HOW PEOPLE ARE EXPOSED: Through skin or eye contact, or by breathing air that contains the chemical. It can also be used to poison water or food.

WHAT IT DOES: In large enough doses, sarin causes convulsions, paralysis, loss of consciousness and potentially fatal respiratory failure. People usually recover completely from smaller doses.

ANTIDOTE: The drug atropine, which must be injected into the thigh within minutes. (AP)

A man grieves for a relative who died in a suicide car bombing in Baghdad Monday. The blast also killed Izzadine Saleem, the chairman of the Iraqi Governing Council.

Slain Council President A Famed Writer, Activist

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | The Iraqi Governing Council chief killed in a car bombing in Baghdad Monday was a prominent writer and activist who had survived prison under Saddam Hussein and then more than two decades in exile before returning to try to rebuild his country.

Abdel-Zahraa Othman, better known by the name he adopted in exile, Izzadine Saleem, had been a Governing Council member since its establishment last July. He was to have held the council's presidency, which rotates monthly, until June.

Saleem had worked in Iran writing for the Supreme Council for Islamic Revolution in Iraq, the largest anti-Saddam force. He also edited several newspapers and magazines and wrote novels and an award-winning study of the Prophet Muhammad's daughter.

He was born in 1940 in Basra and went on to become a history teacher. A founding member of Dawa, a Shiite party that opposed Saddam's Sunni regime, Saleem was imprisoned from 1974-78, said Harith Ibrahim, an Iraqi still in exile in Britain. Soon after his release, he fled to Kuwait and later to predominantly Shiite Iran.

He is survived by four sons and four daughters. (AP)

U.S. to Shift Troops in S. Korea to Iraq

WASHINGTON | The Pentagon is moving 3,600 U.S. soldiers from bases in South Korea to the conflict in Iraq this summer, possibly marking a permanent reduction in the size of the U.S. military force that has helped deter war on the Korean Peninsula for 50 years.

The soldiers will rotate into Iraq on one-year tours, Pentagon officials said Monday. The troops are among the 37,000 stationed in South Korea to deter an invasion by the communist North. A Pentagon spokesman,

Lt. Cmdr. Flex Plexico, said the decision was made "at the highest levels of the U.S. government."

A 'Black Monday' for India

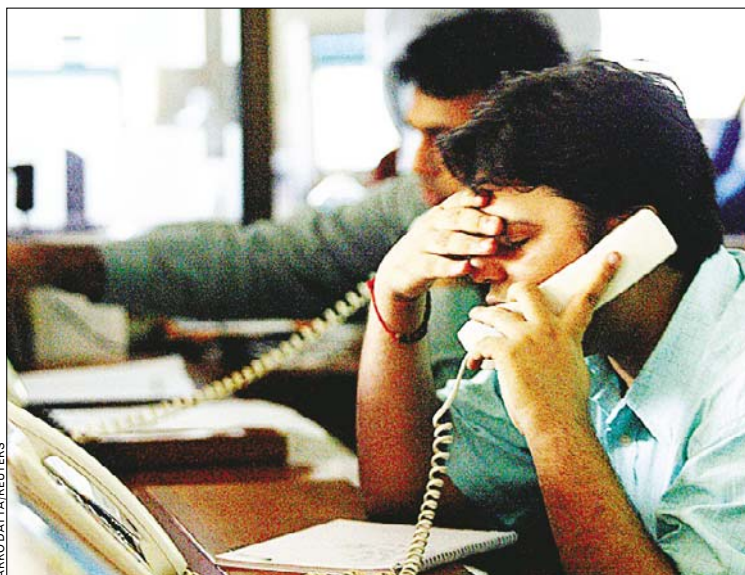

Political uncertainty sets off biggest market plunge since 1875

NEW DELHI | Angry investors chanted "Down with Sonia Gandhi" outside India's stock exchange Monday, blaming the country's prime minister-in-waiting for a panic that led to the biggest one-day plunge in the market's 129-year history.

Since Thursday, when Parliament election results showed Gandhi's Congress Party would be able to govern only with support from anti-privatization communists, India's markets have bled some $45 billion, brokers estimate. The outflow culminated in what TV newsmen called "black Monday."

Regulators twice halted trading at the main bourses when share prices tumbled more than 15 percent. Prices recovered some when trading resumed, however. The Sensex closed at 4505.16, down 11.1 percent, its lowest close since 1992. The National Stock Exchange, India's largest, plunged 12.3 percent, the lowest since it opened in 1994.

Indian investors were furious as they watched their holdings shrivel.

A trader talks on the phone at a Bombay brokerage firm Monday. Stocks dropped as it became clear that the new government could slow the pace of economic reform.

They blame Gandhi, who pledged to go forward with economic liberalization policies, for not making any reassuring statements to investors since her election victory.

Gandhi was to meet Tuesday with President A.P.J. Abdul Kalam to discuss formation of the government. She will be sworn in as India's first foreign-born leader, said her party officials and allies.

Gandhi's Congress and its allies trounced the National Democratic Alliance led by Prime Minister Atal Bihari Vajpayee in the elections. It was an extraordinary upset, as all polls had indicated the booming economy and Vajpayee's unprecedented peace gestures toward Pakistan had assured him another five-year term as prime minister. U.N. Agency: GM Crops Good for Poor Farmers

ROME | Genetically modified crops are helping poor farmers and have posed no adverse health or environmental effects so far, the U.N. food agency said Monday.

In a positive report likely to fuel the biotech debate, the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization said the biggest problem with GM technology is that it has not spread fast enough to small farmers and has focused on crops mostly of use to big commercial interests.

U.N. officials stressed that GM products were only one tool to help poor farmers, who still need access to fair markets and decent land. But they said the technology has great potential for increasing crop yields, reducing costs and improving the nutritional value of foods.

The use of GM crops is widespread in the United States, but it faces opposition in parts of Europe and Africa. Opponents say the crops pose unknown risks, and that corporations that develop and sell GM seeds benefit the most.

Yet the report found that while private companies have been largely responsible for selling the seeds, "it is the producers and consumers who are reaping the largest share of the economic benefits." (AP)

Fire at Overflowing Prison in Honduras Leaves 103 Dead

SAN PEDRO SULA, HONDURAS | A short-circuit sparked a fire Monday that quickly ate its way through an overcrowded cellblock in a Honduras prison, suffocating or burning to death 103 gang members.

It was the second deadly prison fire in Honduras in a little over a year, and Vice President Vicente Williams promised to find funds to improve the overcrowded system.

In August, President Ricardo Maduro succeeded in passing legislation outlawing gangs and establishing minimum sentences of 12 years for gang members. The law exacerbated already severe overcrowding in the country's jails.

The prison in San Pedro has room for 800 prisoners, but held 1,960 at the time of the fire, the police commissioner said. (AP)

Third Snakehead Found in Potomac

Officials looking for proof fish are reproducing

WOODBRIDGE, VA. | An angler caught a northern snakehead fish over the weekend in the Potomac River, the third time in nine days that the voracious alien species has been found in the river.

The 13-inch fish was caught Saturday in Occoquan Bay near Woodbridge by an angler taking part in a bass fishing competition, according to Steve Early, a fisheries official with the Maryland Department of Natural Resources.

Officials at the Virginia Department of Game and Inland Fisheries did not return several phone calls Monday.

The catch site is about 5 miles south of where an angler reeled in a 12-inch snakehead May 7 near Mount Vernon. Last Wednesday, another 12-inch snakehead was caught across the river at Marshall Hall, Md.

Scientists fear the fish, an aggressive predator imported from China that can wipe out native fish species, may be spawning in the Potomac. But Early said despite the three finds, he is still looking for evidence of reproduction such as smaller snakeheads or females that are ready to lay eggs.

Because the Potomac is too vast to effectively hunt for more snakeheads, officials are relying on recreational anglers to determine if any more fish are in the river. (AP)

Jury Finds Teen Guilty of Killing Friend With Cyanide

A Howard County jury found a teenager guilty of first-degree murder on Monday for spiking a friend's soda with cyanide. Ryan Furlough, 19, killed Benjamin Vassiliev, 17, in 2003 because he wanted the teen's girlfriend, prosecutors told jurors, describing the defendant as "evil." (AP)

Crew Passes on D.C. Schools Job

MIAMI | One of the contenders to run the District of Columbia Public Schools has instead decided to go south. Rudolph Crew was hired Monday by the Miami-Dade County school board to be that district's new superintendent. He accepted a five-year contract with a beginning annual salary of $295,000.

Crew was D.C. Mayor Anthony A. Williams' top choice out of three finalists, and made an unannounced visit to Washington over the weekend, where he dined with several city leaders and school board members.

"We have several outstanding candidates very much in play for the position. And if Mr. Crew has made a decision to move to Miami we will move on to these other candidates," Tony Bullock, a spokesman for Williams, said Monday. (AP)

Post Co. Buying El Tiempo Latino

WASHINGTON | The Washington Post Co. announced Monday that it is buying El Tiempo Latino, the Arlington-based Spanish-language newsweekly, from Farragut Media Group Inc.

El Tiempo Latino's business and editorial operations will remain separate from The Washington Post's, said Post executive editor Leonard Downie Jr.

Post Co. officials would not disclose the purchase price.

The Washington Post Co.'s foray into Spanish-language media echoes those of other newspaper publishers, including the Tribune Corp., Belo Corp., and Knight Ridder Inc., which have either launched their own Spanish-language newspapers or bought established ones.

Since 2000, El Tiempo Latino and The Washington Post have had an informal content-sharing relationship, in which the Post supplies selected news stories translated into Spanish to El Tiempo Latino.

Downie said in the future that The Washington Post and El Tiempo Latino may "expand their cooperation on news coverage."

El Tiempo Latino, which has a circulation of 34,000, is delivered to homes in the District and Maryland, as well as distributed for free at Metro stations and selected Giant and 7-Eleven stores in the Washington metropolitan area.

It was recently named the Best Hispanic Weekly in the United States by The National Association of Hispanic Publications.

D.C. Eases Disabled Parking Concerns

WASHINGTON | The District on Monday announced a temporary fix for concerns raised over access to parking for disabled drivers, as the city prepares for thousands of visitors Memorial Day weekend.

A bill signed last week by Mayor Anthony Williams will allow disabled drivers with a valid permit, license plate or placard from other jurisdictions to park from May 25 through June 2 in time-limited spaces for free and for double the allotted time, a spokesman for the D.C. Department of Transportation said.

A lawsuit filed in March alleges some D.C. parking meters are inaccessible to the disabled and the application for a D.C. placard is too intrusive. DANNY FREEDMAN (EXPRESS)

800,000 Jobs to Go Offshore by '06

Research firm says trend not confined to tech, finance sectors

SAN JOSE | New figures on offshore outsourcing suggest U.S. companies are sending more white-collar jobs to low-wage countries such as India, China and Russia than researchers originally estimated.

Roughly 830,000 service-sector jobs — ranging from telemarketers to software engineers — will move abroad by the end of 2005, according to a report released Monday by Forrester Research. The firm projected in 2002 that 588,000 jobs would move overseas by 2006.

Forrester also increased its long-term job loss prediction, estimating that 3.4 million jobs will leave the United States by 2015.

Lead researcher John C. McCarthy said widespread publicity over the savings associated with offshoring may have hastened the trend. The average computer programmer in India earns roughly $10 per hour, compared to $60 per hour for the average American.

Executives in the financial services and technology industries have embraced outsourcing and tech hubs, such as Silicon Valley and Austin, Texas, have higher unemployment rates than the nation at large.

The report says a new wave of white-collar offshoring among manufacturers — automobile parts suppliers, for example — will bring the trend to other parts of the country, particularly the Midwest, which is still reeling from the offshoring of blue-collar jobs to eastern Europe, Latin America and China. COURT RULINGS

Court Rules in Favor of Tenn. Student Seeking Loan Relief

The Supreme Court made it easier Monday for people to go to bankruptcy court to get relief from education loans or other debts. Justices sided with a Tennessee student who claimed she could not afford payments on $4,000 in state-backed education loans. The state argued that it could not be taken to bankruptcy court against its wishes, but the justices ruled 7-2 to let Pamela Hood pursue her case. (AP)

Oil, Gasoline Prices Surge

Oil prices surged near $42 a barrel Monday as markets shrugged off a Saudi proposal that OPEC raise its official output target by 6 percent. Separately, the Energy Department said the average U.S. retail price of a gallon of gasoline passed $2 for the first time. (AP)

Markets Fall on Glum News From Iraq

NEW YORK | Wall Street, already beset by worries about the economy and world events, skidded even lower Monday on news that the head of Iraq's governing council had been assassinated. The Dow Jones industrial average fell more than 100 points.

"Fear is what's dominated this market over the past month and a half, whether it's Iraq or interest rates or inflation," said Brian Pears, head equity trader at Victory Capital Management.

Bargain hunting helped the market recover a small part of its early losses, but investors' overall mood was one of depression. Stocks also fell on foreign exchanges in response to the violence in the Middle East and to political and economic events in India and Japan.

The Dow fell 105.96, or 1.1 percent, to 9,906.91, the lowest close for the blue chips since Dec. 5. Earlier in the session, the index fell 150.10, but it recovered somewhat as investors searched for bargains after weeks of heavy losses. (AP)

Fair Warning

Will a chemical found in cosmetics get its own warning label?

CAUTIONS | Chemicals called phthalates are in everything from toys and vinyl flooring to food packaging and pharmaceutical products. They make plastics more flexible, nail polish more spreadable and creams and lotions smoother.

They've been used for years and have attracted little attention until recently. But a growing number of health and environmental activists are pushing to have cosmetics containing the chemicals banned or, at the very least, carry a label to warn consumers of their presence. The safety of phthalates in toys and plastic food packaging is also coming under scrutiny.

Studies in animals have shown that phthalates (pronounced THA-lates) increase the risk of reproductive system birth defects in males, such as testicular atrophy, and may cause some types of cancer. The chemicals are considered by some health experts to be "endocrine disruptors," substances that mimic estrogen in the body.

Last year, the European Parliament and the Council of the European Union banned phthalates in cosmetics sold there, based on concerns about safety.

Phthalates make nail polish go on smoother.

BRYAN CHAN/L.A. TIMES

Some U.S. cosmetic companies are phasing out phthalates in various products. Procter & Gamble is replacing its nail polish with a phthalate-free line, and Estee Lauder has announced it is removing phthalates from its products as well. Both companies said they did not believe phthalates were a threat to consumers.

Cosmetic industry leaders say they object to attempts to curtail or ban phthalates. The experiments showing harm to animals involved levels of the chemicals far in excess of what humans are exposed to, says Dr. Gerald McEwen, vice president for science for the Cosmetic, Toiletry, and Fragrance Association. There is no evidence that the small amounts people are exposed to cause any health consequences.

Behavior Drugs for Kids Prevail

MEDICINE | As more American children pop pills for attention deficit and other behavior disorders, new figures show spending on those drugs has for the first time edged out the cost of antibiotics and asthma medications for kids.

A 49 percent rise in the use of attention deficit/hyperactivity disorder drugs by children under 5 in the past three years contributed to a 23 percent increase in usage for all children, according to an annual analysis of drug use trends by Medco Health Solutions Inc.

Antibiotics still top the list of the most commonly used children's drugs, but parents are paying more for behavioral drugs, such as stimulants or antidepressants, according to the analysis of drug use among 300,000 children under 19.

The most startling change was a 369 percent increase in spending on attention deficit drugs for children under five. That's in part because of the popularity of newer, long-acting medicines under patent, compared with generic versions.

LIVE ONLINE

Chat House

From washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Washington Post columnists MICHAEL WILBON and TONY KORNHEISER were online Monday to discuss the NBA playoffs and other sports news.

I'm pulling for the Pistons. They have a nucleus of good, young players, like Ben Wallace, Richard Hamilton and Rasheed Wallace. Why can't my Wizards ever manage to get talent like that?

TONY: That's funny, considering the Wizards had all those people. I think it's very possible that history will record the Richard Hamilton for Jerry Stackhouse trade as the worst the Wizards ever made, even worse than Chris Webber for Mitch Richmond.

Which team, Kings or Wolves, has the best chance at beating the Lakers?

MIKE: I think the Kings. They are bigger and stronger and more talented and they've been in this particular situation before, which I think counts for something.

Given the number of veteran QBs that are circulating now, did the Redskins jump too soon in signing Mark Brunell?

TONY: Absolutely. How could you prefer Mark Brunell over Jeff Garcia? I'd even take a shot at Kurt Warner if they hadn't signed Brunell.

Hamilton Rips Into Nets' Defense

Ex-Wizard leads Pistons into Game 7 Thursday

NBA PLAYOFFS | With childlike energy, sprinter's speed and the talent of an NBA standout, Richard Hamilton creates headaches for those who have to guard him.

Jason Kidd is finding that out. Hamilton's off-balance jumper — over Kidd — capped a 24-point performance with 15.5 seconds left Sunday, lifting Detroit to an 81-75 victory over New Jersey in Game 6, evening the Eastern Conference semifinal series and keeping the Pistons' season alive.

"You live for moments like that," said Hamilton, who was traded to Detroit by the Washington Wizards two years ago. The Wizards acquired Jerry Stackhouse in the deal.

Detroit's slender and slippery shooting guard is averaging 20.4 points in the playoffs, fifth among active players.

Hamilton sprints down the court as fast as any player in the NBA, then runs some more. He effectively uses teammates to set up screens against defenders, giving him at least a split second to curl around them for nearly automatic 15-foot jumpers.

"Rip never stops," Kidd said. "He's the focal point of their offense. He has probably one of the best mid-range jump shots in the game."

The Pistons snapped New Jersey's nine-game home winning streak in the playoffs against Eastern Conference teams and forced a Game 7 on Thursday night in Detroit.

The Nets will be looking to make it to the Eastern Conference finals for the third straight year, while Detroit will try to get there for the second season in a row.

EX-ATHLETES IN TROUBLE | Former Washington Redskins lineman George Starke, a member of the original "Hogs," was arrested last week on a charge of driving without a license in a car containing drugs, prosecutors said Monday.

D.C. police stopped Starke in Northeast on Friday night when an officer noticed he was not wearing his seat belt, according to charging documents. He was also charged with driving on a suspended license, and a search of the car revealed seven grams of cocaine, prosecutors said.

Starke denied the allegations. "Everyone in Washington knows I don't do drugs," he said. (AP)

Lightning Seek To Stop Primeau

Tampa, Philadelphia square off in Game 5 of series on Tuesday

NHL PLAYOFFS | Keith Primeau used to be a top scorer. He's become an even better leader.

Primeau's outstanding performance in the playoffs has the Philadelphia Flyers halfway to the Stanley Cup finals.

But the Tampa Bay Lightning are standing in the way, holding home-ice advantage.

With the Eastern Conference finals tied at two games apiece, both teams took off Sunday, choosing to rest as the series shifts to Tampa for Game 5 Tuesday night.

Primeau and the Flyers regained momentum with a 3-2 victory Saturday that left the Lightning wondering how they can stop the forward who has seven goals and four assists in the playoffs.

"He has had a very good series," Lightning coach John Tortorella said of Primeau in a conference call. "We have a tremendous amount of respect for him. Our mind-set is we have to worry about our hockey club. Do we have to make small adjustments? Sure, but our main focus is on our team." ROB MAADDI (AP)

Baltimore's Mora Is a Hit

Orioles slugger owns league's best batting average

BASEBALL | No one's complaining about Melvin Mora's home runs anymore.

When Mora hit 19 homers and batted .233 with the Baltimore Orioles two years ago, the operative theory was that he too often aimed for the fences instead of fulfilling his role at the top of the order by getting on base.

Mora lifted his average to .317 in 2003, and his performance thus far this season has erased any doubt about his ability to both reach base and hit for power.

Playing on a team with sluggers Rafael Palmeiro, Javy Lopez and Miguel Tejada, Mora leads the surprising Baltimore Orioles with seven home runs and a .594 slugging percentage. His 26 RBIs are second on the team to Tejada's 30.

He also stands atop the AL leaderboard in batting average (.368) and on-base percentage, and ranks second in runs scored (34).

Seems like someone is owed an apology.

"When I hit .233, people think I tried to hit home runs. I've showed everyone that was wrong," Mora said.

Mora has hit safely in 17 of his last 21 games, going 33-for-79 (.418), and leads the Orioles with 17 multi-hit games.

In spite of a young starting rotation that has proven to be a burden on the bullpen, the Orioles (18-16) are hanging with the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox in the AL East. Mora is a big reason why.

"I think as every year that goes by, he's more mature, more confident in his ability," Orioles rookie manager Lee Mazzilli said.

DAVID GINSBURG (AP)

TAKE A BOW: Baltimore's Melvin Mora has recaptured his 2003 All-Star form this season. He has a .368 batting average to go with seven home runs and 26 RBIs.

Olympics Opened Up to Transsexuals

OLYMPICS | Transsexuals were cleared Monday to compete in the Olympics for the first time.

Under a proposal approved by the IOC executive board, athletes who have undergone sex-change surgery will be eligible for the Olympics if their new gender has been legally recognized and they have gone through a minimum two-year period of post-operative hormone therapy.

The decision, which covers both male-to-female and female-to-male cases, goes into effect starting with the Athens Olympics in August.

Some had been concerned whether male-to-female transsexuals would have physical advantages competing against women.

Men have higher levels of testosterone and greater muscle-to-fat ratio and heart and lung capacity. However, doctors say, testosterone levels and muscle mass drop after hormone therapy and sex-change surgery.

IOC spokeswoman Giselle Davies said the situation of transsexuals competing in high-level sports was "rare but becoming more common." (AP)

Hawaii's Helping Hand

Jasmine Trias is still an 'Idol' contender thanks to her home state

POWER-VOTING | Since she started competing on "American Idol," Jasmine Trias has ridden a wave of support from Hawaii — radio hosts, a TV news anchor, a newspaper and a congressman have campaigned on her behalf.

But it looks like the support from regular Hawaiians — those with telephones, anyway — is what's really paying off.

It appeared Trias would be knocked out of the competition after a mediocre performance last week, one that plainly disappointed the show's judges, but viewers sent La Toya London packing instead.

Fantasia Barrino and Diana DeGarmo also were left standing. The finale is May 25-26, when one of the three singers wins the "Idol" crown and a record contract.

The mania surrounding the contest continued in Hawaii last week as fans greeted Trias at Honolulu's airport. Later, as she received a proclamation declaring it "Jasmine Trias Day," Lt. Gov. James "Duke" Aiona told her that she has galvanized the state.

"You represent us very well," he said.

Trias told the crowd that she thought she was going to be eliminated Wednesday. Executive producer Simon Fuller said she had given farewell gifts to the staff.

YOU KEEP ME HANGING ON: Hawaiian voters are dialing their fingers off for Trias.

One phone company's records might hold clues to the outcome.

Of the 29 states in Verizon's local territory, only New York and California logged more calls on its network than Hawaii after the show, a Verizon spokesman said Thursday. California and New York are among the most populous states in the nation; Hawaii is among the least.

The Honolulu Advertiser published a full-page color ad seeking to boost Trias's vote.

She said she felt "a little guilty" advancing in the competition after her performance was panned by the show's judges. RON STATON (AP)

Georgia on Her Mind

THE COMPETITION | Pink was the color of choice — even for the mayor — at a homecoming celebration for "American Idol" finalist Diana DeGarmo.

Snellville, Ga., mayor Jerry Oberholtzer said he had to do some quick shopping to find a suitable pink tie for the celebration last Thursday after the 16-year-old DeGarmo became one of three finalists on the Fox show.

DeGarmo

Hundreds of fans and friends, many wearing pink T-shirts that proclaim DeGarmo as "Snellville's American Idol," packed the social hall at Snellville United Methodist Church for her homecoming.

"Snellville, we have come a long way," DeGarmo told the cheering crowd. She was presented a key to her hometown and named "mayor for the day."

DeGarmo has been boosted by a strong grassroots campaign in Snellville and surrounding Gwinnett County. (AP)

LOVE SICK: Morrissey's music evokes classic Brit rock while re-inventing it.

Prey for Rock 'n' Roll

MUSIC | Stephen Patrick Morrissey is a piece of work, as they say here in the U.S.A. After a five-year hiatus, Brit-rock's eternal misfit returns in full flower on "You Are the Quarry" (Sanctuary), atremble with emotional conflict, affronted by a world that treats him with indifference or cruelty, cursed to isolation but longing for connection. Welcome back, Mozz.

Morrissey finds someone to blame for this pickle in "I Have Forgiven Jesus," in which he doesn't seem to have forgiven him at all: "Why did you give me so much love in a loveless world, when there is no one I can turn to, to unlock all this love?"

Elsewhere, the singer encourages a potential partner to "close your eyes and think of someone you physically admire, and let me kiss you." Then there's the woman who tells him she loves him — "which means she must be insane."

Morrissey's lyrics often seem to spill out, unprocessed, straight from his heart, but their bizarre ungainliness is somehow disarming. Like his previous solo albums and his output with the Smiths, Morrissey places his song-song deadpan vocals in musical settings that, at their best, swell, sigh and swoon with the surging buoyancy of classic British rock.

"Quarry" is a little heavy on the lugubrious ballads, but it's all Morrissey all the time.

NOTHING TO HIDE: Dickinson's lack of restraint makes her memoir a fun read.

Shallow Waters

Former supermodel
Janice Dickinson
bares all in a memoir

VANITIES | Supermodel Janice Dickinson has survived a punishing childhood, various addictions and a truckload of bad relationships. She's done everything to excess and lived to tell about it.

A recovering alcoholic ("... even today, in my darkest moments, I want to drink so badly my entire body is screaming"), Dickinson found it therapeutic to write down her feelings about the abuses she'd suffered as a child, and the life issues she's suffered since. That writing became her first memoir, "No Lifeguard on Duty."

Now she's back with "Everything About Me Is Fake ... and I'm Perfect!" (ReganBooks) in which Dickinson writes about some of her not-so-glamorous modeling jobs (swimming in a shark tank, passing out while wearing fur on an oppressively hot day) and being under constant scrutiny, even when she was eight months' pregnant.

Eating is strictly forbidden when you're a supermodel, Dickinson says. Has she had plastic surgery? You bet.

As for the men in her life, Dickinson vents about several famous ex-boyfriends, including Mick Jagger and Sylvester Stallone.

Now a judge on "America's Next Top Model," Dickinson offers beauty tips, including how to apply individual false eyelashes, extols the virtues of exercise and admonishes readers to "please learn how to walk in high heels."

The book's most heartfelt moments are the glimpses Dickinson offers into life with her two children, Nathan, 16, and Savvy, 10.

But don't expect insight and sobriety to turn her into a shrinking violet — or a woman who doesn't hold a grudge.

"In case you're reading this, Mick? I'm Janice, babe. The original. Don't forget it. Don't underestimate it, either." CAROL

Golden Age of Irony

Hollywood's period of great art gave rise to an era of blockbusters

DVD | "Easy Riders, Raging Bulls" (unrated) is a filmed version of Peter Biskind's well-known book about Hollywood from 1966 to 1976, when studios despaired of trying to guess what young audiences wanted.

Martin Scorsese, Peter Bogdanovich, Francis Ford Coppola, George Lucas, Steven Spielberg, Hal Ashby and others made films that old-time studio heads would never have approved had they not been reeling from some big, expensive flops.

They took chances on movies now recognized as classics: "Bonnie and Clyde," "Midnight Cowboy," "Taxi Driver," "The Last Picture Show," "American Graffiti," "McCabe and Mrs. Miller," "Harold and Maude," "The Wild Bunch."

Even "Jaws" and "The Godfather," two giant commercial hits, were considered long shots in the hands of the unproven Spielberg and Coppola.

The ironic twist is that two of those directors, by their success, ruined the studio system for small, personal films. Spielberg and Lucas made blockbusters, and that became the standard for the studios. LARRY

WILLIAMS (THE HARTFORD COURANT)

SHREDDING THE COMPETITION: "Jaws" went from a labor of love to a monster hit.

CAN YOU SAY "PERPETUITY"? Ray explains the concept of syndication to Michael.

Raymond Re-Ups

SCHEDULING | Three days before announcing its fall schedule, CBS sealed a deal Sunday to bring the Emmy-winning comedy "Everybody Loves Raymond" back for a ninth and final season. Producer and star Ray Romano agreed to shoot a shortened season with only 16 new episodes. Most television shows make about 22 episodes a year. "I look forward to being a hapless, sexless husband again in year nine," Romano said. The Monday night comedy featuring Romano and his dysfunctional family won the 2003 Emmy for best comedy. The additional year was widely expected. Terms of the deal were not disclosed. Executive producer Phil Rosenthal said it was important to maintain quality and make sure the show had not overstayed its welcome. He and Romano realized they had more stories to tell, he said. This week, broadcast networks announce their fall schedules in a series of presentations to advertisers, who will then decide to buy about $9 billion worth of commercials. CBS announces its schedule on Wednesday. DAVID BAUDER (AP)

HOT FOR PRINCIPAL
8 SIMPLE RULES (8 p.m., ABC) wraps up its difficult second season with an hour-long episode. After problems with the girls, widowed Cate (Katey Sagal) agrees to have coffee with the school principal (Adam Arkin). While it remains to be seen if Cate's relationship with the principal is more than academic, a steady thing between them wouldn't hurt Adam Arkin's career. His last show was "Baby Bob"!
CAN'T-LOSE PROGRAMMING
Tuesday nights remain a problem for some networks. While Fox pulls in great ratings with "American Idol," NBC has to rely on LAW & ORDER: SPECIAL VICTIMS UNIT. Tonight, two episodes of SVU focus on a bully's murder (9 p.m.) and a creep with a video camera who catches a murder in action (10 p.m.).

TIME'S UP FOR HEWITT
Legendary news producer Don Hewitt is profiled on TELL ME A STORY: THE MAN WHO MADE '60 MINUTES' (9 p.m., CBS). Next month, he steps down as executive producer of the Sunday programming. Hewitt joins "60 Minutes" correspondents to recall some of the news-magazine's most memorable moments and guests, from Katharine Hepburn, Muhammad Ali and Jackie Gleason to Richard Nixon and the Ayatollah Khomeini.
SMALLVILLE DVDS
Superboyfans can now collect "Smallville: The Complete Second Season," a six-disc DVD collection that includes short feature films. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Blogs While You Browse

BROWSERS | A new Web browser from Opera Software is the first major browser to incorporate an emerging technology that automatically delivers new blog entries and news articles (www.opera.com).

Visitors can subscribe to feeds using Really Simple Syndication, or RSS, and have new items come in regularly as individual messages in Opera's mail client, which is packaged with the browser. Because RSS is integrated into Opera, visitors can easily e-mail items or open links from the same application. Opera is the No. 3 browser for Windows computers. (AP)

Gamers Get Exercise

TOYS | Attendees of last week's Electronic Entertainment Expo in Los Angeles got to check out hundreds of new game-enhancing accoutrements.

Sony's PlayStation Portable, nicknamed PSP, features a 4.3-inch color screen, stereo speakers and wireless Internet for multiplayer games. Though as small as a thin paperback book, it's nearly as powerful as the full-sized PlayStation 2, with music, video and 3-D graphics capabilities. The PSP will be available in the United States in the spring of 2005.

Many game controllers at the show encouraged players to get off the couch. Cateye Fitness showed GameBike, a stationary exercise bike that plugs into any PlayStation and allows you to control games by steering and pedaling.

GAMES AFOOT: If you program it, they will come and play it standing up at E3.

The $250 QMotions-Golf Indoor Golf Simulator lets you hit the links in your living room. You test your swing by whacking a golf ball mounted to a swing arm that you connect to your computer. Golf clubs not included.

The long-rumored Phantom Game Console from Infinium Labs Inc. finally made an appearance. The white set-top box runs a version of Windows XP and requires a broadband connection so you can order PC games on demand. The company plans to offer the Phantom for free — with a two-year commitment to its $29.95-a-month game service. MATT SLAGLE (AP)

Fall Under Bono's Spell

BONO urged students graduating from the University of Pennsylvania Monday to tackle the problems of poverty and disease in Africa. Ending Africa's extreme poverty is "cheaper than the Marshall Plan in Europe. It's cheaper than fighting wave after wave of terrorism's new recruits," the U2 singer said. "We have the know-how. We have the cash. We have the lifesaving drugs. But do we have the will?" (AP)

Bono was pleased. The blue robes complemented his tinted glasses.

JESSICA SIMPSON and her younger sister, ASHLEE, broke some ice for the new Ice Breakers Liquid Ice breath mints on Monday. Ads in which the two debate whether the mints are liquid or ice start next week. "As a busy newlywed and singer, I know how important it is to have fresh breath," Jessica said. (EXPRESS)

DEAD CELEBS
The Brad Pitt of His Day

A museum chronicling the short life of actor JAMES DEAN has opened in Indiana along the Interstate 69 highway in a spot its curator hopes can attract more fans of the "Rebel Without a Cause" star. "This is a great thing for Gas City and Grant County," Mayor Larry Leach told about 60 people who attended Saturday's opening of The James Dean Memorial Gallery. The art deco-style gallery showcases magazine covers, newspaper clippings, books, paintings, movie posters, collector plates and blankets featuring the actor. (AP)

INFANTS
Twins Now, Triplets at 50?

GEENA DAVIS, 47, gave birth to twin boys at a Los Angeles hospital, her publicist said Monday. Kian William and Kaiis Steven, born May 6, are now at home in Los Angeles with their mother. These are the second and third children for Davis and her surgeon husband, Reza Jarrahy, 33. The couple, who married in September 2001, already have a 2-year-old daughter. (AP)

Happy Birthday to You,
From Your Last Film We Flew

PIERCE BROSNAN celebrated his 51st birthday in Mexico City, raising a glass of tequila and cutting a cake with journalists covering his latest film, "The Matador." Brosnan was serenaded with "Las Mananitas," the traditional Mexican birthday song, on Sunday in the upscale Mexico City neighborhood Coyoacan. He said his cake was especially delicious because it was the first he had ever received from reporters. After filming "El Matador," in which he plays a hit man at the end of his game, Brosnan plans to vacation in Hawaii. He will return to the region to play a tourist who witnesses a murder in the film "Mexicali." (AP)

SPRAINS
Her Heart Will Go On.
Her Neck Is the Problem

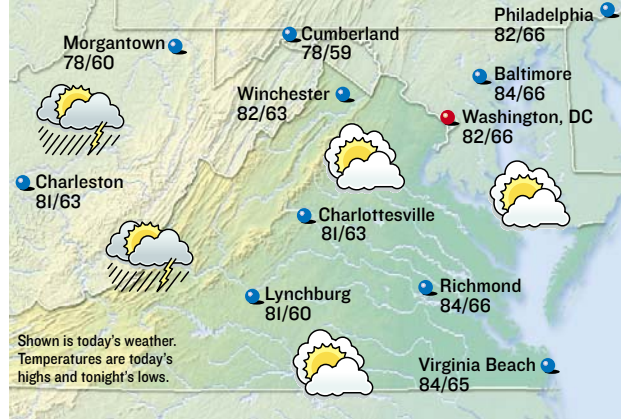

CELINE DION has canceled five more performances of her nightly show at Caesars Palace after spraining her neck. Dion's show "A New Day

..." won't go on Wednesday through Sunday. The singer canceled last week's performances because of the injury. The star has been hampered by the sprained neck, which she suffered during a Mother's Day show, a spokeswoman said. (AP)

TO THE EDITOR

SONIA GANDHI, the prospective prime minister of India, will not "rule" India, as you reported ("Gandhi Endorsed in Bid for Premiership," May 17). She would no more "rule" India than President Bush or Prime Minister Blair "rule" the United States or United Kingdom. India is a democratic nation where the people are sovereign just as they are here. The unexpected loss in India's recent election was a clear demonstration of who is sovereign.

—PRITIDHARA MOHANTY
Fairfax, Va.

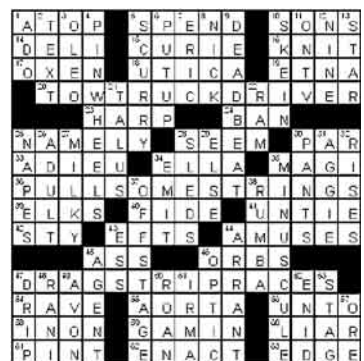

I ENJOYED BRET Shulte's column on baseball in the District ("Only Game Not in Town," May 10). As he points out, it is beyond ridiculous that the nation's capital does not play the nation's pastime. But what is even more ridiculous is the reason we are given. Baltimore and Washington are contiguous markets, not one market. The fact is, the Orioles are in Baltimore, and given the traffic on a typical weeknight, I might as well drive to the beach as go to a ball game. The Ravens and Redskins have proven that two sports franchises in the area can be viable.

Horoscope | Stella Wilder

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Remember that your relationships are never easy. Be willing to work harder than usual.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Someone will go out of his or her way for you. Be willing to express your gratitude and return the favor.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Take care you don't become too possessive — or too defensive — while working closely on a pet project. Know when to accept advice and criticism.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — You may find yourself singing the praises of someone who only yesterday was your polar opposite. Indeed, the tide is turning.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Be ready and willing to practice what you preach. It is unacceptable to ask others to do what you're unwilling to do.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — You will enjoy your day more if you balance impulse with planning; improvisation can only get you so far.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Keep your strong personality under wraps for a time. Try not to dominate situations, conversations or relationships.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — You may be caught between two conflicting stories. It will be up to you to set the record straight — now and in the days to come.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — You may find yourself wondering where you are — and your professional standing may come under some scrutiny as a result.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — You'll be eager to take advantage of any and all opportunities to socialize, instead of putting your nose to the grindstone.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — You're in no mood to let someone else tell you what to do, and if anyone tries it's almost certain to result in fireworks.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — If it's more honest communication you want, you may have it — but you had better be sure you're ready to hear what others have to say.

Gay Marriage

From washingtonpost.com/liveonline

JOSHUA LEGG, president of the Freedom to Marry Foundation in Massachusetts, was online Monday to discuss the ruling to allow same-sex marriage in the state effective Monday.

Are there any estimates as to how many marriage licenses would be issued in the first 24 hours?

In Cambridge Sunday night there were 260-plus applications filed. By the time I came back from Boston City Hall to join this discussion, there'd already been 84 here in Boston today. And remember, every community in Massachusetts started taking applications today. Who knows how many we'll see by the end of the day? And we know licenses will continue to be issued for a long time. I don't think we'll have a sea of folks this first week, but the numbers will still be exciting.

How long do you think it will be before a gay couple married there will sue for the right to be recognized in every state?

It's difficult to figure out what the appropriate course might be to open up marriage across the country and strengthen the institution of marriage at the same time. The reality is that there are cases pending in three states currently, and I'd expect some possible litigation in places like California and Oregon that might have an impact well before a Massachusetts case might be ready to be heard.

Isn't it rational, if we're changing the definition of marriage, to extend that freedom of choice to polygamy?

Absolutely not. We are not talking about numerosity here. We are only talking about two human beings who love one another and their rights as citizens to protect one another through their lives.

In 6 months, we can train you to complete the Honolulu Marathon.

DESTINATION:

Honolulu

Hawaii

Training Begins June 12, 2004

A Training Program for Everyone

Our six-month training programs are geared to both beginners and experienced runners. We start with three miles of running and walking, and then gradually increase the distance. Many of our participants are first-time marathoners. Some have never run a step in their lives. But 98% of those who complete this program complete the marathon.

Each weekend, you'll train with your "pace group" – other runners who share your same level of conditioning, whether fast or slow. It's a great way to get fit, have fun, and make a tremendous difference in the fight to end AIDS. It may be the best thing you do this year, and your life will never be the same.

Guided Fundraising

The rate of new AIDS cases in Washington, DC is 12 times higher than the national average. The money we raise will allow Whitman-Walker Clinic to provide direct medical care, food, housing, and other vital AIDS services – to help keep people with HIV/AIDS alive until there's a cure.

In the past six years, we've helped 14,000 people nationwide raise more than $45 million to support people living with HIV/AIDS. We'll be there to support you every step of the way. You'll be surprised at how willing people are to support you. All you have to do is ask.
